Dr	Angela	Kennedy	Trauma Informed Care Lead	14.03.2019	I do paid and unpaid private work outside of my teww role and outside of work hours that includes mainly supervision, clinical assessments, training, mentoring, and organisational consultancy. TEWW does not pay me for any of this either directly or indirectly. At the moment I regularly supervise a number of staff from around the country and abroad on their clinical work relating to trauma or compassion or EMDR. Some of this is paid for by their employer (only one is NHS) and some by the individual. I have an ongoing legal case that I provide reports for relating to abuse and psychosis. The client is not in TEWW. I have agreed that I may provide more assessment reports for other clients if they are not TEWW clients. These would be referred from the Pottergate Centre in Norwich. I have occasional work relating to supervision/ coaching/consultancy for wider system change projects, leadership development or trauma informed care. These are sometimes NHS Trusts. I have plans to run a private compassionate mind training group for the public which will likely be held in Tyneside. I have held positions or have links with the UK trauma and abuse group, European society for trauma and dissociation; Psychotherapy section of the BPS; international society for the psychological and social treatment of schizophrenia; compassionate mind foundation; compassionate wellbeing. These may ask me to run training or workshops for them, sometimes these are paid. There are four paid trainings/ retreats that are likely to happen this year. I am intending to start writing a book on compassion this year and have another drafted on trauma (which if published is contracted to be part of ISPS book series with a small royalty). I also have a private art practice and may take part in art events/ exhibitions.	None	None	None

Dr	Peter	Morgan	Highly Specialist Applied Psychologist	27.02.2019	I work for TEVV 15 hours a week. Outside of this time, I deliver mindfulness supervision for individuals and other organisations, I also teach mindfulness in various academic settings, and may teach mindfulness or deliver mindfulness teacher training for other organisations at times. Potentially, teaching I could deliver in future (for example to Teesside Clinical Psychology Doctorate Course) may occur outside of my working hours and thus result in financial benefit. Currently teaching I do for them is seen as part of my role, however, if the frequency of teaching increases this would likely need to be done outside of my current role. This decision would be made in conjunction with my manager.	I work for the Trust as a mindfulness teacher/part of the leadership team. General activity in the Trust, experience I gain or training I attend will increase my overall profile and professional status as a mindfulness teacher/trainer, which would also support other work that I do outside of the Trust. I run a website 'The Free Mindfulness Project' and an associated poetry site, these are both not-for-profit, but could potentially benefit from my activity in the Trust.	None	None

I do not believe that it conflicts with my Trust/NHS work. I have been remunerated (but not employed) visiting lecturer on the Tavistock & Portman / University of Essex D58/D59 psychotherapy courses based in Leeds for the past 4 years and on-going.
